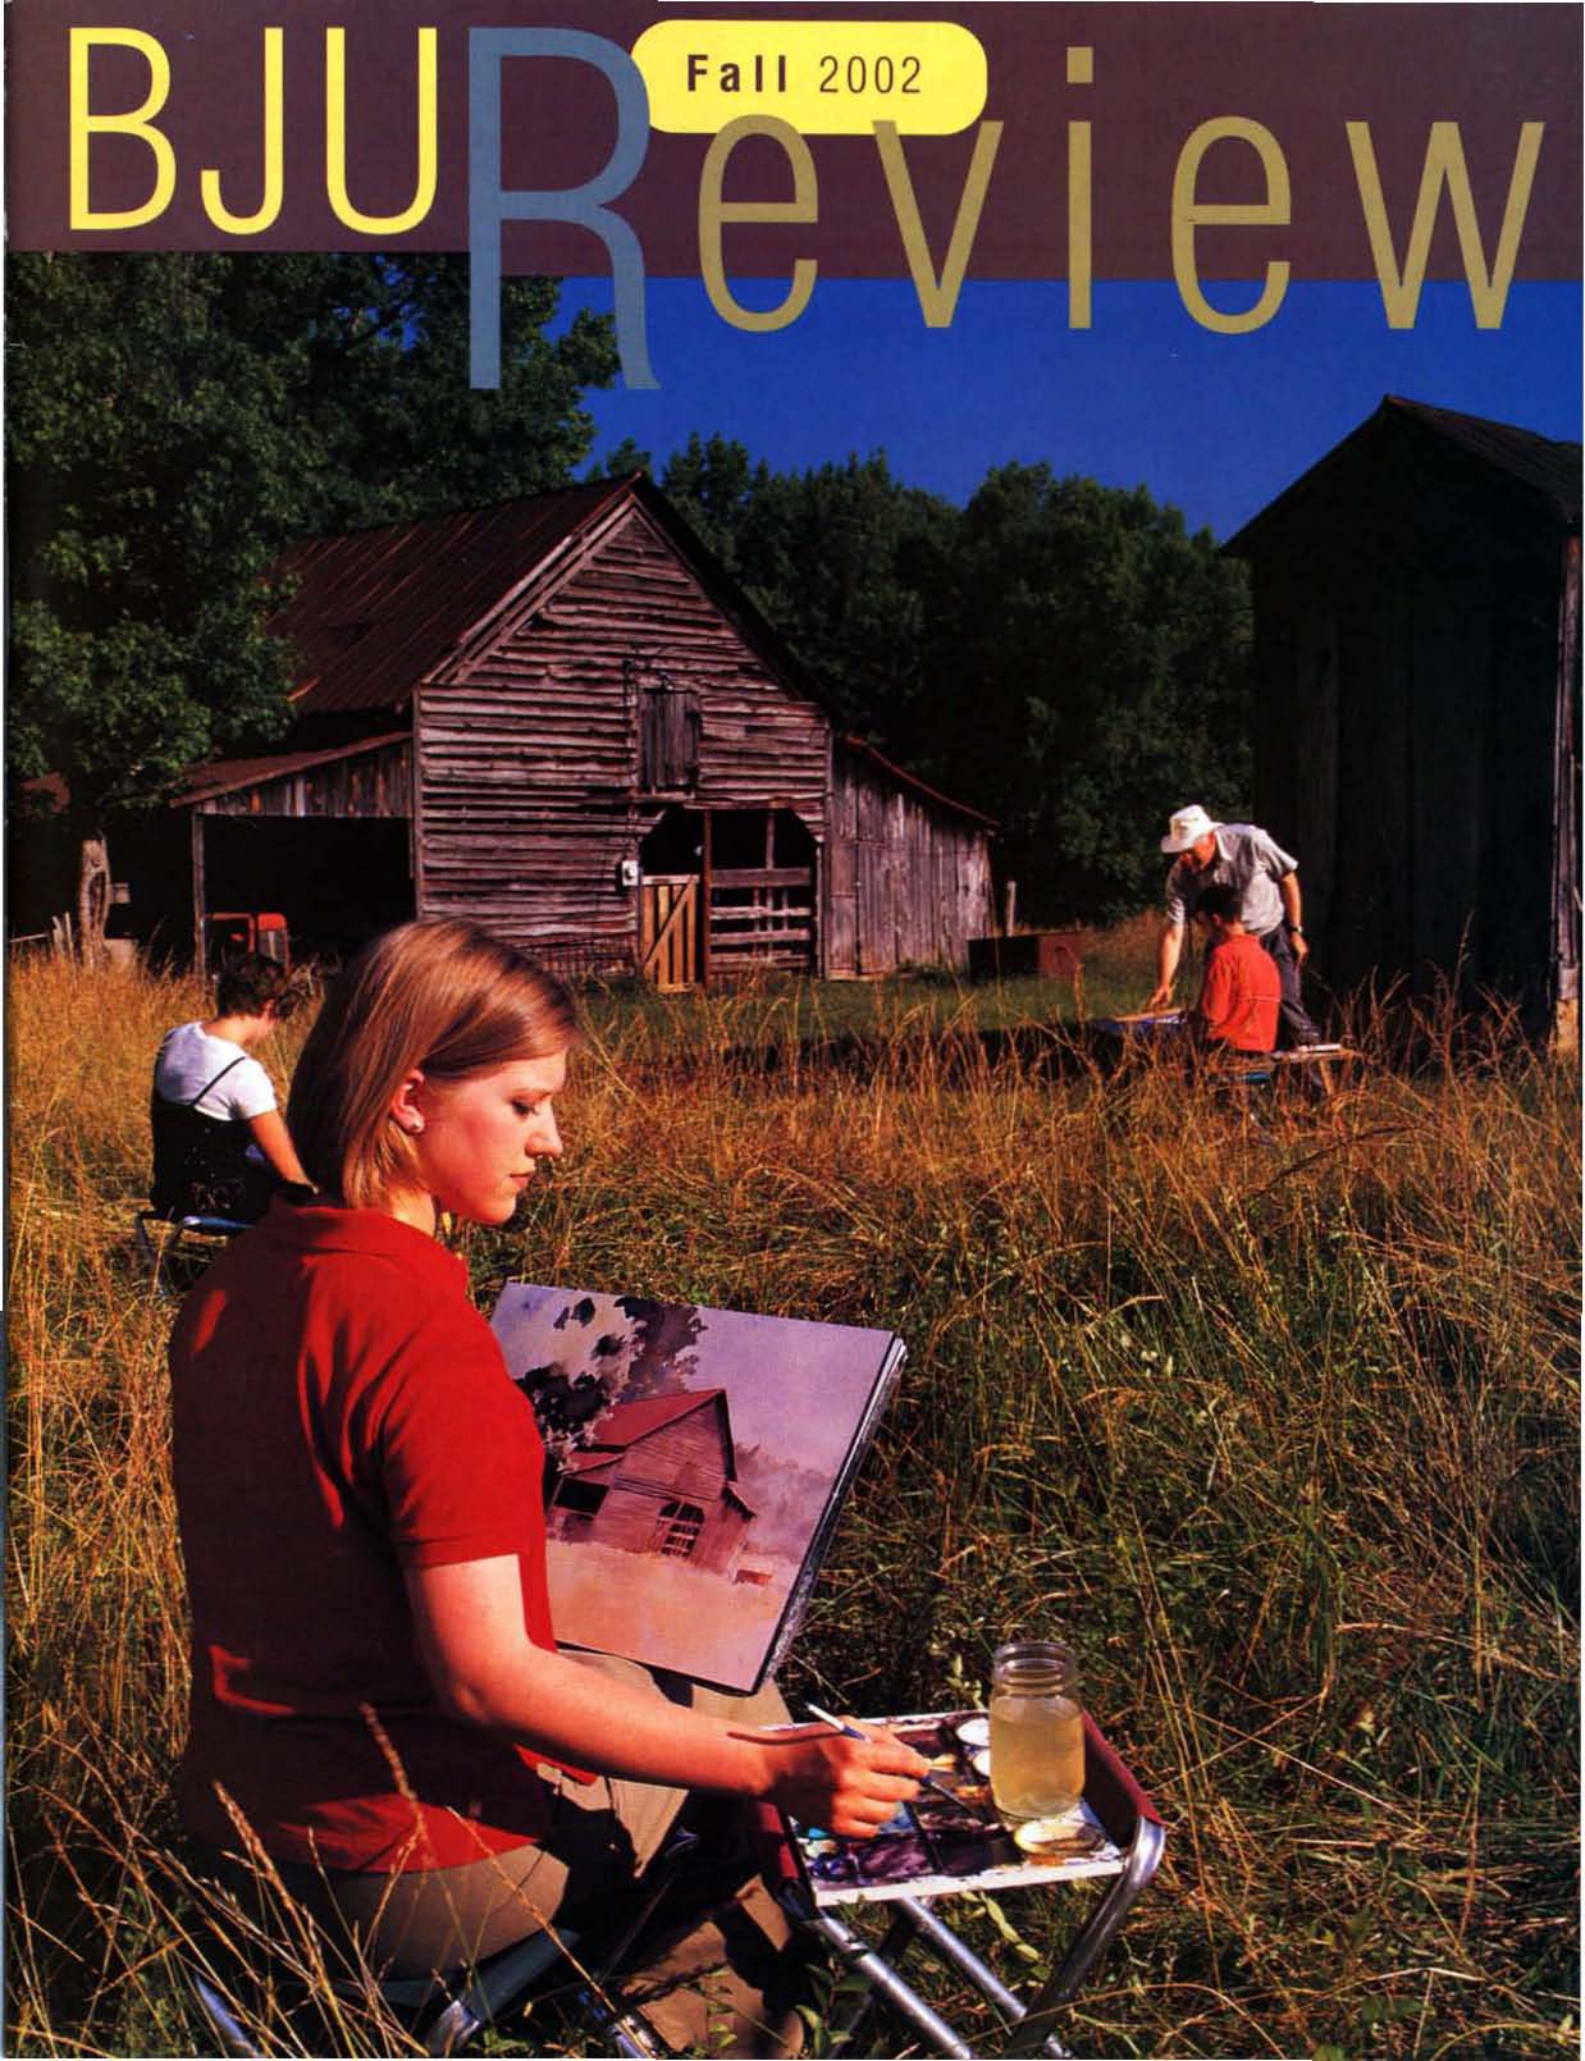
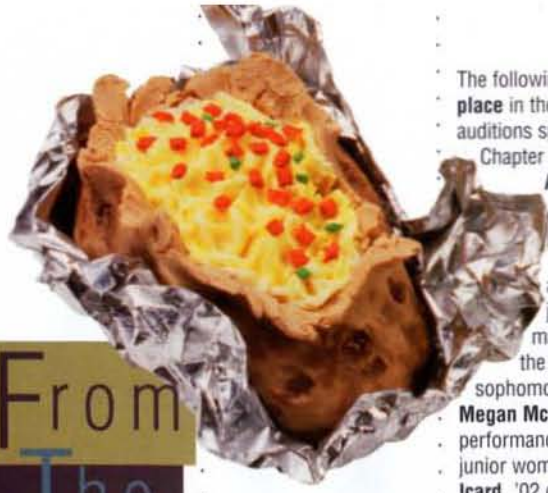
BJU Review

Fall 2002





From The Refrigerator Door

The following students won first place in their category in auditions sponsored by the SC Chapter of the National Association of Teachers of Singing. Shellie Beeman, junior voice performance major, and Delena Trombly, junior voice performance major, tied as winners of the category in the college sophomore women's division; Megan McCauley, senior voice performance major, in the college junior women's division; Brandi Icard, '02 grad, in the college senior women's division; and Scott Aniol, senior church music/voice major, in the college junior men's division. Twelve other students received a superior rating and, along with the first-place winners, advanced to regional competition. Megan McCauley and Shellie Beeman both went on to win second place in their categories at the Mid-Atlantic regional competition.

At the National Educational Debate Association (NEDA) National Debate tournament this spring, Bob Jones University received the Outstanding Debate Program award given to the school with the best overall performance for the entire year. This is the third consecutive year that BJU has received this award. Samuel Bray, '02 prelaw grad, received the All American Award as well as second place in the Open Division; Bob Chest, '02 humanities grad, placed second in the Open Division and Individual Speaker Awards.

Allen Probus, '99 grad, was recently appointed to a position in the cello section in the Kansas City Symphony.

Dan Smith, former University Registrar, has successfully completed his doctorate in educational leadership from BJU. He has assumed the new position of Director of Educational Services beginning with the 2002-03 school year.

On April 23 the South Carolina House of Representatives honored the University for its 75th anniversary with a resolution passed by both chambers. A copy of the resolution was presented to Dr. Bob III and now hangs in the Executive Wing.

Rebeccah Parker, junior cello performance major, and Ben Wagner, sophomore piano performance major, both won the Gardner-Webb University Concerto Competition in their division and played in the Gardner-Webb University symphony in Boiling Springs, SC, this spring. Rebeccah also spent six weeks as a Young Artist at the Rocky Ridge Music Center in Colorado where she was awarded a student staff scholarship.

Cynthia McGuire of the nursing faculty completed all the requirements for a master of science degree in nursing from Clemson University. She was selected from the graduates to give the graduate response speech at the Clemson Nursing Convocation.

Brenda Ludwig of the nursing faculty successfully completed her doctorate in educational leadership from BJU this spring.

Mark Ward Sr. of the radio and television broadcasting faculty recently delivered the keynote address, "Beyond the Daydreams: What It Takes to Be a Real Writer," at the annual American Christian Writers Association conference in Charlotte, NC. Mark has also recently released his new book The Word Works!, a series of true stories of people around the world who were saved after receiving or finding a Gospel tract.

Dr. Walter Fremont, dean emeritus of the School of Education, has co-authored a new book about walking in the power of the Holy Spirit. Power to Serve is published by the BJU Press.

Michael Slattery of the art faculty received a $500 purchase award in the Anderson County Annual Juried Show in SC.

Tabetha Hale, senior premed major, received the 2002 Lowell Glasgow Student Research Award by the Western Society for Pediatric Research for her efforts in pediatric research at the University of Washington in Seattle, WA.

The Collegian (BJU's student newspaper) received several awards this year, including South Carolina Press Association's Collegiate Contest, 2nd place for Best Overall; in the American Scholastic Press Association, 1st place (with Special Merit: receiving 955 out of 1000 points), and Outstanding Sports Coverage for the November 21 issue (Turkey Bowl/BJUnited Game Guide).

EXCERPTS FROM The COLLEGIAN

The Collegian is BJU's award-winning student newspaper published 15 times a year, September through June. The following excerpts are from the April 25, 2002, issue.

Graduates Dedicate First Years to Serving Struggling Churches

"...The Partners in Planting program is the challenge Dr. Bob gives to students to devote their first three years out of college to small churches in need of lay workers—not only ministerial majors, but any students who have a desire to see a ministry grow.

"Elaine Whitfield, a senior mass communications major from Gallup, NM, will be returning to her home church.... She and her fiancé, Jonathan Bobo, a 2000 RTV graduate, will join the ministry of Emmanuel Baptist Church [near a Navajo reservation] after their wedding this summer...."

"Rev. Dan Unruh, former BJU registrar and current pastor of Westside Baptist Church in Greeley, CO, has had several couples move to his area to aid in his ministry.... 'We simply need people to fill in the gaps—good solid core people who love the Lord and want to serve Him...,' pastor Unruh said.

"Scott Janku, a sophomore adult ministries major, and his wife Dee-Anna, a 1997 marketing management graduate, are moving to Portland, OR, this summer to help plant a church in the area....

"Scott and his wife have already planned to move although they haven't secured jobs or housing in the area yet...."

Seminary to Offer Master's Degree in Bible Translation

"Of the more than 6,000 languages in the world, almost 3,800 are without a translation of the Scriptures. The BJU linguistics department and the Seminary are teaming up to combat this problem by offering a new graduate degree in Bible translation....

'The master's degree is a natural outgrowth of the summer Missionary Linguistics Program (MLP) that the University has been offering since the mid 1970s,' said Dr. Grace Hargis, head of the linguistics department.

"The MLP is an eight-week summer course designed to help missionaries master language learning."

Faculty Write Seven New Books

"Students know how time consuming it is to read a book, much less write one. Yet somehow seven faculty members have recently found time to write books on topics ranging from dealing with tragedy to witnessing with tracts....

"Dr. Layton Talbert, professor of theology in the Seminary, illustrates the providence of God in his new book, Not by Chance: Learning to Trust a Sovereign God, published by the BJU Press....

"Dr. Dan Turner, head of music education and director of bands, began his book project nearly a decade ago. His book, Reflecting God's Light: Facets of a Miracle, was the result of another—Standing Without Apology: the History of Bob Jones University...."

"Dr. Turner's wife, Mrs. Jamie Turner of the writing faculty, has been writing novels since the 1980s. Her latest novel, Though the Night Be Long, is due to be published next year."

Big Busin

It's not what you think. Making it big in the business world doesn't always mean lying, cheating, and stealing. It can mean good old-fashioned godly character and strong academic preparation. Sometimes that's all it takes.

Background Check

A&L Handles, Inc.

- Over 40 million handles a year

the right kind of school

"BJU offers three key areas of preparation that you can't find at many other colleges—leadership development, Christlikeness, and discipline," says Mr. Mike Buiter, '77 accounting grad, former vice president of finance at the Dr Pepper Company, and business faculty member for BJU's undergrad and MBA programs. "Leadership training is really key here. The University gives you many opportunities for leadership so that you can take those opportunities and leverage them as training for the business world."

"BJU also gives you a real perspective of Christian life and Christian principles," says Mr. David Bowman, '76 management grad and president of A&L Handles, Pottstown, PA. "It's an atmosphere that's fostered on the campus. It's part of our lives. Putting the biblical perspective on all that we do and say is so critical, even in the business world."

"In addition, because of the liberal arts emphasis at BJU, our graduates are well-rounded," says Dr. Kris Martin, '84 accounting grad, former senior accountant with Deloitte, Haskins, & Sells, and chairman of the division of accounting at BJU. "The curriculum at BJU is difficult, and recruiters know that our graduates earn the grades they receive. One recruiter told our students that when he sees a 3.4 GPA from a BJU accounting student, he equates it to about a 3.7 GPA from comparable programs at state schools."

That says a lot about the quality of education that students receive at BJU. But academics are not the primary focus. BJU was designed to instill Christian principles in students while giving them the academic training they will need for their futures.

a Christian perspective

"Certainly anyone graduating from college wants to be well prepared academically for his/her chosen field; however, it is even

Tips from the Top

"It's important to have a sense of humor. Don't take yourself too seriously. Enjoy what you do and develop an attitude that learns to adapt. Make the most of every situation."

—David Bowman
President of A&L Handles, Inc.

"Give 110% in all efforts, think outside the box, and be accessible and responsive to clients and employees alike."

—Paula Barton
Vice President/Corporate Sales Representative of NBSC

"People watch your every move, particularly in positions of special influence. If you pray silently before a meal, they see this, and it means something. Being positive and remaining consistent even under the most adverse circumstances is a solid starting point for an effective word of witness."

—Rick Altizer
Vice President of the Heartland Region, McDonald's Corporation

"Be honest—all day, every day. Being honest means reporting time and expenses accurately as opposed to adding a little bit extra. Honesty would solve most of the problems that ail the Christian businessperson."

—Marshall Franklin
Partner, Ernst & Young

Dr Pepper Company
- Third largest soft drink company
- Fortune 500 company
- Sales exceed $800 million per year (wholesale) and $4.5 billion at retail
- Sales to 700 Coke, Pepsi, and independent franchises

Ernst & Young
- One of the "Big 5" international professional services firms
- Globally managed with over 78,000 employees in 660 locations in more than 130 countries
- Audits 18.4% of Business Week's Global 1,000 companies

Graco Children's Products Inc.
- Largest company in the juvenile products industry
- Supplier to Toys "R" Us, Babies 'R Us, and Wal-Mart
- Most consumer-recognized name in the juvenile industry

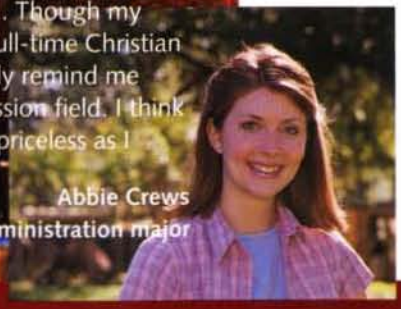
"Usually when people think about business success, all they think about is money. I think that's limiting God's ability to use different people in different areas. Not a lot of preachers have the opportunity to be in the business world and reach the lost there. But if I can have a good Christian testimony in front of my co-workers, I can be a witness to them. Money and power can never provide true happiness. So I believe if I obey God's will for my life, I will be a success in His eyes."

Jia Yu
junior international business major

"I appreciate being in the Christian atmosphere here, but most of all, I appreciate the people. I really respect the business faculty. They were successful in the business world, while maintaining a good Christian perspective. I respect that. We have such a good business program here, and the BJU name carries a lot of weight in the South because people know the program is so good."

Ryan Tuttle
junior accounting major

"I could have gone to a secular college to get the skills for managing an office, but at BJU, I've learned the skills for managing an office and for applying biblical knowledge to my management skills. I'm confident that I've been well taught by godly businessmen and women who have already been out there in the work force. However, the most helpful thing about my BJU education is my teachers' focus on preparing me to serve the Lord. Though my area of service may not be in full-time Christian ministry, the teachers constantly remind me that the business world is a mission field. I think that reminder will prove to be priceless as I move out into the world."



Abbie Crews
junior office administration major more important to gain a Christian perspective during the years in training," says Miss Paula Barton, '84 accounting grad and vice president/corporate sales representative of National Bank of South Carolina (NBSC). "BJU is in the business of instilling Christian character in its students. Any college can teach one how to make a living, but BJU excels in also teaching its students how to live."

"It's one thing to take a marketing course, an accounting course, and an English course, but when you have a Christian professor who loves the Lord and desires not only to communicate the subject, but also to apply that subject to everyday life, that gives you a whole different viewpoint," Mr. Bowman says. "We as Christians have the opportunity to bring the Christian perspective into the business world."

That's exactly what the faculty at BJU are doing every day as they prepare students to go out into the world.

"The faculty are truly interested in the success of their students academically, but the interest extends into every aspect of a student's life," Miss Barton says. "At many other institutions the interest ends once a student exits the classroom, but not so at BJU. While faculty members at other colleges consider it their job to teach their students, BJU faculty members consider teaching their ministry."

"The service attitude of the faculty at BJU is incredible," says Mr. Rick Altizer, '87 accounting grad and vice president and general manager for the Heartland Region, McDonald's Corporation. "They give their lives so unselfishly to others as a ministry unto the Lord. What a great example this is for all graduates to follow, regardless of their individual major or profession."

"While I was in school I knew that my teachers

McDonald's Corporation
- #1 in the quick-service restaurant industry
- World's leading foodservice retailer
- More than 29,000 restaurants in 121 countries
- Serves 45 million customers each day

Synovus Financial Corporation (NBSC)
- 38 independently operated banks in SC, GA, AL and FL
- 81.1% stake in TSYS, the world's largest third-party processor of international accounts
- Named by Fortune magazine to the 100 Best Companies to Work for in America for the fifth consecutive year
- Over $16 billion in assets could be pursuing more lucrative and prestigious careers elsewhere," says Mr. Marshall Franklin, '87 accounting grad and partner with Ernst & Young. "But in recognizing God's calling, they chose to be at BJU training me. Through their work at BJU, care in preparation, fairness in grading, and love in dealing with questions, they showed me every day what it means to demonstrate godly character."

"God has established BJU as a place to cultivate godly character and technical expertise in the midst of a world that often disagrees with our approach," Dr. Martin says. "Our BJ students compete very well with their state school peers. I believe we currently have a fantastic, God-loving, business-savvy faculty to train the next generation of business leaders."

a step above the rest

"What has been provided here is excellence. It's demanded and expected in all areas of study," says Mr. Jeff Hargraves, '70 secondary education grad, former vice president of sales at Graco Children's Products Inc., and director for the Center for Educational Technology at BJU (including BJ LINC, BJ HomeSat, Telecommunications, and TV Ministries). "After I graduated I found that my education degree helped me in sales as much as anything would have. A lot of what I learned as an education major could translate into sales presentations. My education degree prepared me simply to teach my product to my customer."

"Our students also have genuine people skills," Mr. Buiter says. "You can learn care and concern for people, but sometimes that's phony. When a genuine Christian has a Christlike love for others, people can tell it's real. People respond to love, even people in the business world. And that's our mission—that others would see Christ in us."

"I also believe that the excellent English and speech training offered at BJU provides a competitive edge in the areas of written and verbal communication," Mr. Altizer says. "Knowing Christ and having a spiritual relationship with Him also gives the believer an honest humility and a Christ-centered confidence that is important to success in the workplace."

"BJU graduates carry the reputation of being knowledgeable, disciplined, honest, and hard-working," Miss Barton says. "All of these characteristics are very desirable when hiring employees, and BJU's total commitment to excellence and developing Christian character has its students prepared in these areas by the time they graduate."

graduate success

"Businesses are looking for results. And BJU has a good reputation," Mr. Buiter says. "People are looking for hard-working, disciplined graduates who know business. And that's our graduates."

"Our accounting graduates, for example, have been hired by a broad range of employers over the years," Dr. Martin says. "Many initially work in public accounting, but they have also worked in financial institutions, church business offices, teaching institutions, industrial settings, and mission fields. The accounting major at BJU is flexible, designed to let graduates enter and be successful in any field to which the Lord calls them."

BJU has proven to have a quality academic program balanced with spiritual training.

"If that weren't the case, you could go anywhere," Mr. Hargraves says. "There are good educational institutions elsewhere, but not with the same commitment and biblical emphasis that's here at BJU."

MBA Program

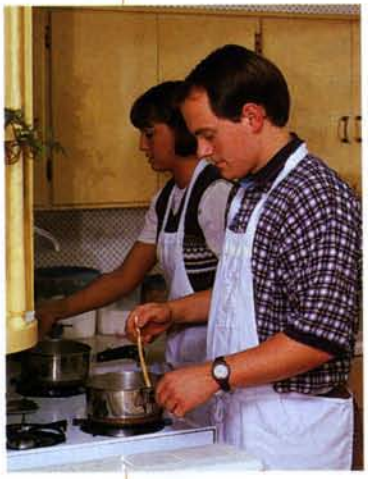
In the summer of 2001, BJU began a new program granting a master of business administration degree through the School of Business Administration. Our students, from as far away as Arizona, participate in a combination of distance and traditional classroom instruction over a 20-month period of time. Instruction is provided by University faculty and practicing business professionals who serve as adjunct faculty. Classes include emphases in accounting, operations, marketing, innovation, leadership, strategy, communication, negotiations, information systems, e-commerce, and entrepreneurial ventures. Contact Aaron Goldsmith, dean of the School of Business, at 864-242-5100, Ext. 2300, for additional information.

But I'm a Math

It actually doesn't matter. Anyone can take an elective class at BJU. It's simply a class that's not required for your normal course of study. And at BJU there are tons of elective classes available, which give the students a great opportunity to learn a new skill or dive into something they've always wanted to do. Just think of all the interesting combinations you could come up with.

You could be a dramatic production major taking elementary Chinese. Or a math major taking painting (how's that for a right brain–left brain combination?). Or how about a prevet major taking a food preparation class...or...maybe not.

We asked the students which electives they've enjoyed the most and here's what they said...



Art Appreciation "I enjoyed the exposure to different styles of art, ranging from Greek sculpture to Early Christian catacomb paintings to abstract art. I also appreciated the interesting class discussions, such as how abstract or non-representational art can still reflect beauty." —Emily Park, creative writing

Organ Lessons "The class is very enjoyable and beneficial because you can see your hard work and discipline pay off when a piece is completed successfully. Being able to work with the professor one-on-one is also enjoyable because of his caring spirit and encouraging guidance." —Jonathan Newell, history

Teachings of Jesus "Not only did I gain a deeper understanding of the parables themselves, but I also gained a deeper interest in studying and applying the principles contained in Christ's wonderful teachings." —Christopher Field, criminal justice

Food Preparation "Even though I already had cooking experience, I learned many interesting things like why, when I boil an egg, the yolk sometimes moves to one end of the egg. I also get to prepare delicious food and take home the leftovers." —Leilani Estrella, humanities

Major!

Counseling Techniques "I enjoyed this course because it presented a biblical view of issues, such as worrying, discerning God's will, and having a right concept of God." —Christel Williams, Spanish education Drama with Children "The class was so much fun, and I learned many practical things about teaching creatively. The principles can be used for any age. My favorite part of the class was going over to BJ HomeSat and helping in the production of three class segments for K-4. We made the puppets, did the voices, and then performed on camera. It was a great way to be involved in something that will be seen by thousands of children. This class is definitely a way to expand and practice talents (sometimes hidden!) for the Lord." —Sherry Dubois, French Ceramics "This class gave me the opportunity to explore an area to which I had not previously given much thought. It was very rewarding to see the result of many hours of work when I got my first piece out of the kiln." —Jacob Riis, premed/chemistry American Family "This was a class where practical instruction ruled. You learn so much about reality in the way the Christian home operates or should operate. It was very insightful." —John Mininger, cinema

Women in Christian Service "This class was taught by three different teachers, and I enjoyed their different personalities. They taught not only biblically, but also practically. The three of them complemented each other and blended well together." —Rochelle Yanson, church music Teaching English as a Second Language "I've had to restrain myself from spending way too much time preparing the lessons because I enjoyed TESL so much. The most memorable thing I learned is that learning and teaching English can be fun. It just requires a little work and imagination." —Elizabeth McAchren, publishing Beginning Sewing "My sewing class was relaxing, and it has come in handy with sewing buttons and hems. My most memorable moment was when I sewed a pocket on upside down." —Yesenia Garcia, humanities

T.O.P. Classes

The University Extended Education division also offers many T.O.P. (The Opportunity Place) courses for students, faculty/staff, and the community. These evening and weekend classes are taught by faculty/staff and range from cooking to languages, computers, and personal development. Some classes, such as CPR and driver's education, even offer certification in that subject,.

Each year hundreds of people participate in these interesting and helpful classes. If you're in the area and would like more information, please contact the Office of Extended Education at (864) 242-5100, Ext. 2045.

RENOVATING

Collard greens, society spoon jewelry, and Dr. Bob Sr.'s chapel pulpit—not exactly what you'd expect to find in a library. But in BJU's Mack Library, you'll find an Archives Memorabilia Room, which contains the history of the University and the Jones family, and yes, a few collard greens.

The original Archives Room opened in 1980, but because of recent environmental problems, something had to be done to preserve the artifacts and photos. "It became obvious that the problem had to be remedied immediately," says Miss Jennifer Sackett, the University archivist. "Once there is mold, you can't just patch and clean. The best thing was to do it right." So the room was completely renovated and on February 7, 2002, after almost three months and nearly 2000 hours of work, the Archives Memorabilia Room reopened.

Mr. Lewis Carl, former Art Agency director, became interested in helping with the project after visiting the old Archives Room and noticing that it needed to be updated. He had ideas but didn't know whom to contact. After meeting Jennifer, he shared with her the ideas that he had. "That's what made it unique," Lewis says. "I looked at it artistically and knew it needed to be updated visually; she saw the need to preserve the artifacts. So we combined our talents and overhauled the entire room."

YOUTH APPEAL

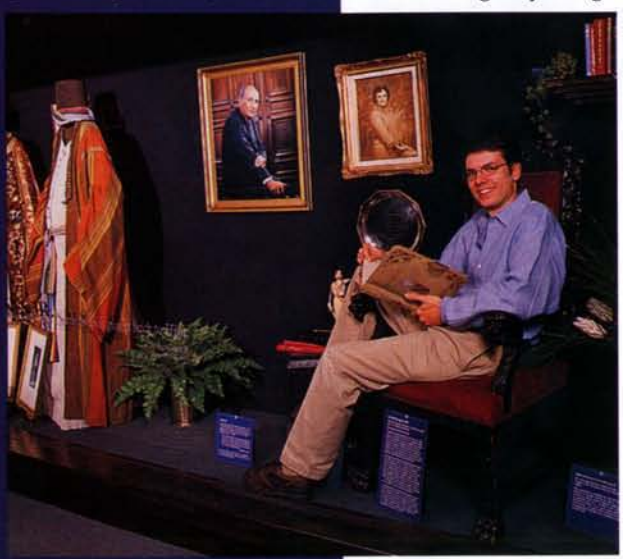
"We wanted to do something to make the Archives Room more interesting to younger generations," Jennifer says. "I would see so many high school students come through on a tour, walk into the room, turn around, and walk right back out. Lewis and I wanted to make it appeal to them and to current BJU students by adding things that they would find interesting."

"The neat thing is that it worked! Because of the contemporary graphics and artifacts that interest the younger generation (such as BJUopoly), we have seen a huge change," Lewis says. "Now students seem to enjoy looking around for awhile. We started cleaning up for the student

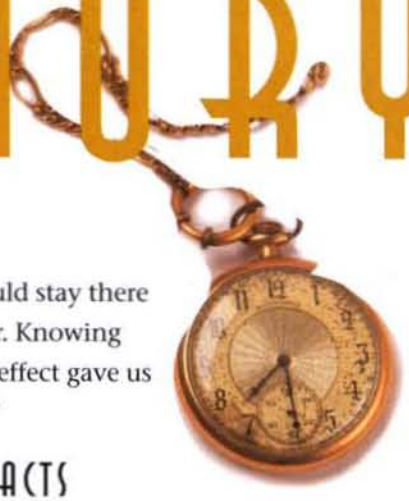
INTERESTING ARTIFACTS

At the top of the list of the designers' favorite artifacts in the new room is collard greens! "Jennifer would come up with these crazy ideas of things to put in the cases," says Lewis. "One that kept coming up was collard greens."

"We looked everywhere for silk collard greens and came up empty. So I decided to dry real collard greens and then shellac them," Jennifer says. "We wanted to include them to show what many students had to do to get through college. During the Depression, a student paid his entire school bill with collard greens, which became a daily item on the menu that year."



MEMORY LANE



cleanup crews so that they could stay there and look around a little longer. Knowing that this room was having an effect gave us the impetus to keep working."

THE HUNT FOR ARTIFACTS

The biggest change is, of course, the new artifacts and the use of the theme "Praise ye Jehovah" (from the 50th Anniversary Hymn), but other changes were made as well. A different color scheme, new case layouts, and improved lighting and ventilation made for a completely different room.

"The photographs that were damaged needed to be reprinted, and we had to search for our own items to include. We added hundreds of artifacts—447 to be exact," Jennifer says. "We found ourselves in the Dining Common at lunch or dinner asking the retirees for artifacts. By the time we got back to our food, it would be cold, but it was worth it! It was fun seeing the retirees so interested in everything. Most of them thought that no one wanted their 'junk,' but that is the stuff that gives our generation a glimpse of what life was like back then."

"It was exciting going through those things and realizing that we were displaying a testimony to what God has done through the people who have invested their entire lives here," Lewis says. "This got us through the long nights and weekends of thousands of hours and thousands of artifacts."

FOCUS ON GOD

"We really wanted to make sure that we kept the focus on God," Jennifer says. "We felt privileged to get to know the people who make up the school's history. This room is a testimony to them and, more importantly, to God's provision for this place."

"Doing this renovation taught us so much about what God has done through and for the University," Lewis says. "Going through all of the scrapbooks, letters, and articles, we could see how the Lord's hand has been in everything and that we truly are in the midst of a miracle!"

Another favorite artifact is the costume that Dr. Bob Jones Jr. wore in his last performance of the Merchant of Venice with the Classic Players. "Shylock was his favorite role, so it seemed appropriate to display the costume," Lewis says.

Other interesting items include:

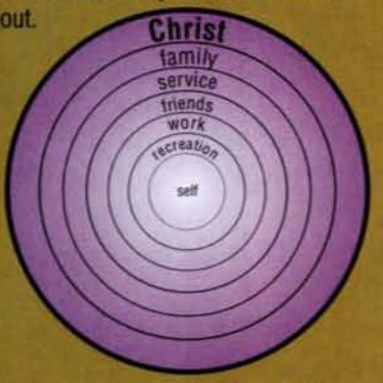
- A Grab-N-Go breakfast (a popular alternative to early breakfast)*
- The first ID card, as well as a sample of each ID card design since then
- A can of worms (You'll have to come see this for yourself.)
- The original charter from 1927
- Bricks from the Florida campus
- Billy Sunday's baseball shoes and his personal preaching Bible
- A square of grass (Remember those "Keep off the Grass" signs?)*
- Outing invitations
- Cinderella slippers from a 1930s outing

* Part of a rotating display case with varying themes. This year's theme is "Then and Now."

The Archives Memorabilia Room is open for tours throughout much of the year. For exact times, or to donate items, call (864) 242-5100, Ext. 6000, or e-mail archives@bju.edu.

The President's Corner

Please allow me to visually present what Acts 17:28 describes and what I want my life, and the lives of every student and faculty member at BJU, to be all about.



"For in Him we live, and move, and have our being…"
Acts 17:28

There is all the difference in the world between a life with Christ as its center and a life with Christ as its circumference. When Christ is the circumference, every relationship and purpose of life is "in Him."

Christ "in me" is the hope of glory (Colossians 1:27). That is salvation. But when our way of life is in Christ (I Corinthians 4:17), He becomes the boundary that circumscribes and defines all our way of life and all our relationships.

I believe this is what King David was saying at the dedication of the temple: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all" (I Chronicles 29:11).

Until each student at Bob Jones University can admit to Christ the Savior's ownership, not only of his soul through the blood-purchased redemption, but of all that pertains to his life in this world, he has not understood the purpose of his years at BJU. Christ is the owner of everything we have and are. When students give their lives to Christ here, they give what was His to begin with, never theirs.

Someone once said, "God is the owner. I am the ower." Well spoken! The core of sin is selfishness—"… we have turned every one to his own way…" (Isaiah 53:6).

Education at BJU is not about putting man at the circumference and calling ourselves Christian because we cram God into the small center. Doing that makes man the largest of all, and God the least.

Wouldn't you rather have a college experience that helps you get life right because your teachers have mastered the Book of Life and love you too much to let you learn about life from anything but the Source?—Bob Jones III

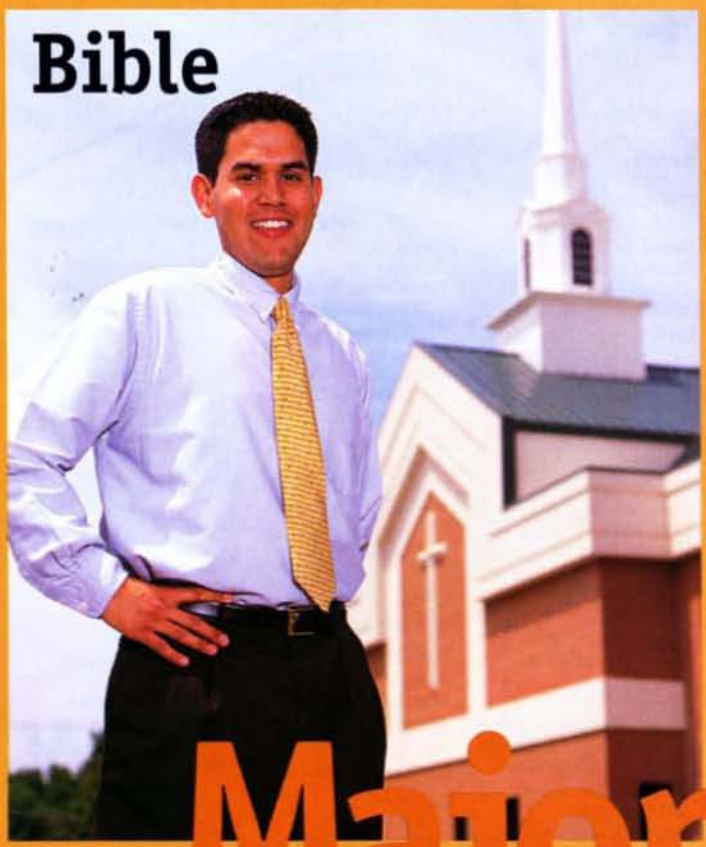
Major Focus

Bible



overview

BJU's Bible major prepares students to serve as pastors, evangelists, or Christian workers in areas of ministry that emphasize the interpretation and proclamation of the Word of God. This program is specifically designed for the development of knowledge and skills in Bible and ministerial principles and practice, as well as biblical languages and oral communication.

current student

Frank Frausto senior from Phoenix, AZ
"I really liked Hebrew history in which I learned how God works amazingly in many lives—changing sinful people like me into useful vessels."

sample classes

- Biblical Themes • Biblical Church Ministry
- Hermeneutics • Old & New Testament Prophecy

graduates

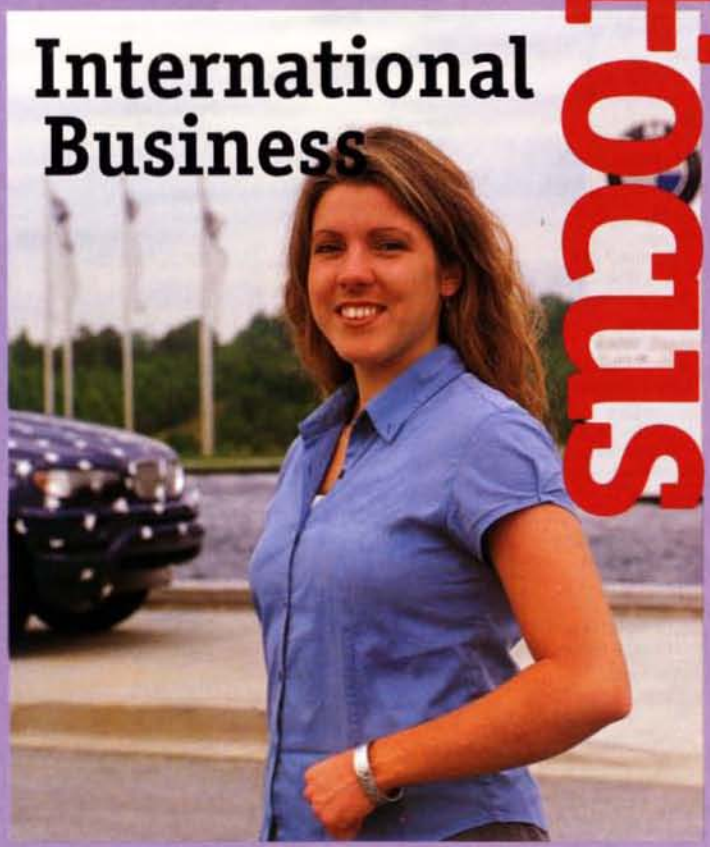
Rand Hummel 1978 grad
Program Director, The Wilds Christian Camp, Inc., in Brevard, NC

John Hutcheson Sr. 1973 grad
Executive Director, PACE (People Advancing Christian Education) in Independence, MO

Richard Meloy 1963 grad
Senior Pastor, Faith Baptist Church in Pensacola, FL

Related majors include Bible Teaching, Pastoral Studies, Ministerial Training (3-year program), and Christian Leadership (3-year program).

International Business



overview

International Business provides a solid core curriculum in business with a focus on worldwide enterprise opportunities. Graduates are prepared for entrepreneurial opportunities or employment with multinational corporations, government agencies, or international organizations. This major also provides specific training in foreign languages so that graduates are adequately prepared for cross-cultural relationships at home and abroad.

current student

Trisha Lyons
senior from Greenville, SC
"My favorite classes here at the University have been my language classes. I'm learning both Spanish and German. I enjoy the classes because they open up a whole new world of opportunities for communication with people around the world, which is a vital part of international business—communication across cultural boundaries."

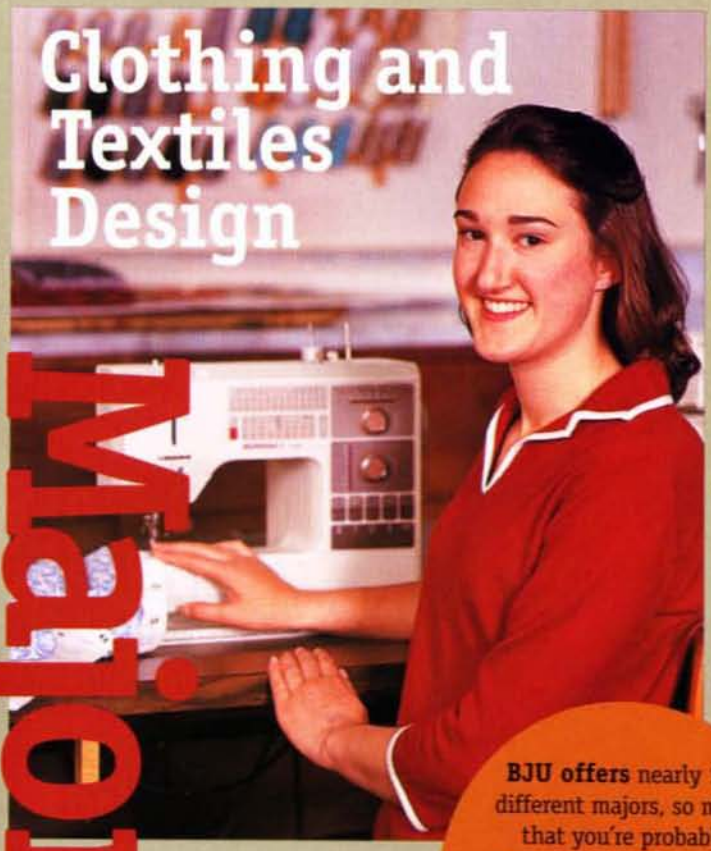
sample classes

- Principles of Management • International Finance
- Legal Environment of Business
- Protocol/Practices of International Business

Major begun in 1999.

Related majors include Comprehensive Business Management, Global Technologies Management, Marketing Management, and International Studies.

Major Focus



Clothing and Textiles Design

overview

This major provides instruction in sewing, clothing construction, fabrics and textiles, sewing for home decorating, and related fields. Theoretical presentations are complemented by extensive laboratory experience and address the latest technological developments. Graduates are prepared for ministry in the home as well as for career opportunities in the clothing and textile field.

current student

Cynthia Long
senior from Lowville, NY
"My favorite class related to my major is Clothing Construction. It has helped me to realize the importance of fine details in garment construction. The experience that I have gained in this class gives me the freedom to create my own designs."

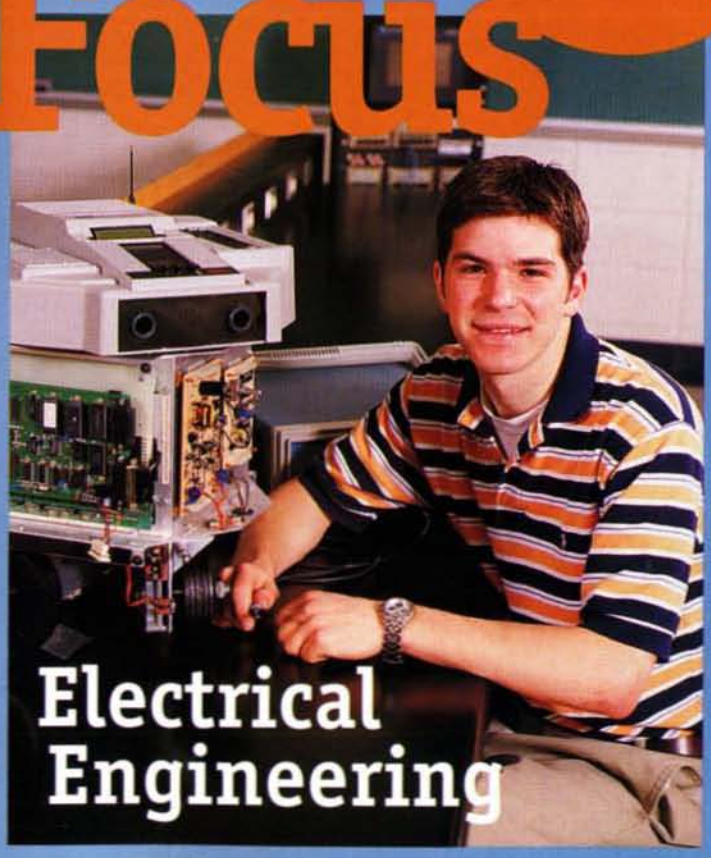
sample classes

- Home Furnishings • Clothing Construction
- Sewing for Interior Design • Flat Pattern Design
- Textiles for the Consumer

Major begun in 1999.

Related majors include Family and Consumer Sciences and Interior Design.

BJU offers nearly 120 different majors, so many that you're probably unfamiliar with a good number of them. Each issue of the Review will feature a quick glance at four majors in this Major Focus feature.



Electrical Engineering

overview

Electrical Engineering prepares graduates for careers in design and analysis of electrical devices, circuits, and systems. It includes a thorough study of electrical fundamentals, solid-state devices, integrated circuits, microprocessors, and control system design. This program provides the necessary knowledge for entry-level jobs in electrical engineering or the pursuit of graduate studies.

current student

Jon Hockenberger senior from Flint, MI
"My favorite class is Basic Circuit Analysis. It is a great introductory circuits course because our professor teaches us practical knowledge for working in the engineering profession in addition to the theoretical concepts of electric circuits."

sample classes

- Digital Electronics • Embedded Systems • Linear System Analysis • Design Problems • Electricity & Magnetism

graduates

Preston Bowman 1992 grad
President & Owner, SurfSignals in Olathe, KS

Phil Verzella 1994 grad

The 2001-02 school year was a special one, as BJU celebrated 75 years of "Reflecting God's Light." Here is a brief look back at the year's events.

75th Year

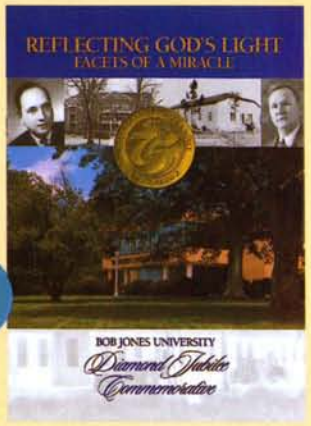
August
Welcome Back Billboards To help commemorate the 75th anniversary year and testify of God's blessing, the University displayed two billboards in the Greenville area welcoming the students back.

August
Banners and Signage around the Campus 134 banners and medallions were displayed around the campus from August to May as part of the 75th celebration.

August
2001-2002 Opening Ceremony (Freshman Entrance) The school year began with a formal welcome to the new freshman class. They entered Founder's Memorial Amphitorium to the sound of bagpipes and drums played by faculty/staff and students. This began a tradition in which every freshman class will be greeted and four years later sent off at graduation with the sound of bagpipes and drums.

September
Emile Pandolfi & the University Symphony Orchestra As one of the many special programs of the 75th year, Emile Pandolfi, accompanied by the University Symphony Orchestra, played and narrated light piano music, entertaining an audience of 2300.

October
Teaser Billboards Billboards containing a bit of BJU trivia were displayed during the month of October to spark the interest of Greenville-area residents and visitors. Questions were posted first; answers were revealed a week later.



November
Anniversary Book Reflecting God's Light: Facets of a Miracle, written by Dr. Dan Turner, is a pictorial history commemorating the 75th anniversary year. The book was released during Thanksgiving and can be purchased in a set with the matching Vintage or alone through the BJU Campus Store (1-800-252-1927).

January

Chapel Vignettes The BJU Unusual Films department produced a series of seven video vignettes which capture vital moments and treasured faces from the University's history. The vignettes were shown throughout the year in Chapel services. All seven vignettes are available on video for a limited time for only $14.95 (shipping and tax additional) by calling 1-800-252-1927 or visiting the Campus Store.

March

Bible Conference: Time Capsule On Monday, March 18, Rob Asuncion and Meg Jordan, the 75th anniversary senior class representatives, removed the time capsule which was buried behind the Administration building by the Class of '77.

March

Bible Conference: 75th Anniversary Service Over 7000 people attended the special Thursday evening service at which the contents of the time capsule were revealed. It contained a 50th year commemorative book and plate, the 1977 Vintage and other University publications, and much more. The most cherished item, heard by all in attendance, was a reel-to-reel 75th anniversary recorded message by the late chancellor, Dr. Bob Jones Jr.

in Review

April

News Insert, April 28, 2002 130,000 Greenville News subscribers received a special BJU 75th anniversary year insert in their April 28th Sunday paper. The insert, sponsored by 13 local businesses, contained information about BJU, including articles on BJU's first years, the move to Greenville, and the Community Relations Council's involvement and recognition in Greenville.

May

Time Capsule Burial A sampling of seventy-five years of history was buried in the 2002 time capsule on May 3 by senior class representatives, Rob Asuncion and Meg Jordan. The buried items will remain a secret until the unveiling in 2027.

May

Commencement Concert—the Music of Dwight Gustafson The concert featured Dr. Dwight Gustafson, dean emeritus of the School of Fine Arts, conducting the University Symphony Orchestra, combined choirs, and soloists as they preformed his own compositions and arrangements. For almost 50 years, Dr. Gustafson has blessed hundreds of lives with his spiritual influence and his musical/acting talent.

May

Convocation 2002 Saturday, May 4, may have been a rainy day, but in the hearts of 822 graduating seniors and grad students, it was a momentous occasion. At 11:22 a.m.the 75th anniversary year officially came to a close and graduates marched out of the Founder's Memorial Amphitorium.

Life in These PARTS

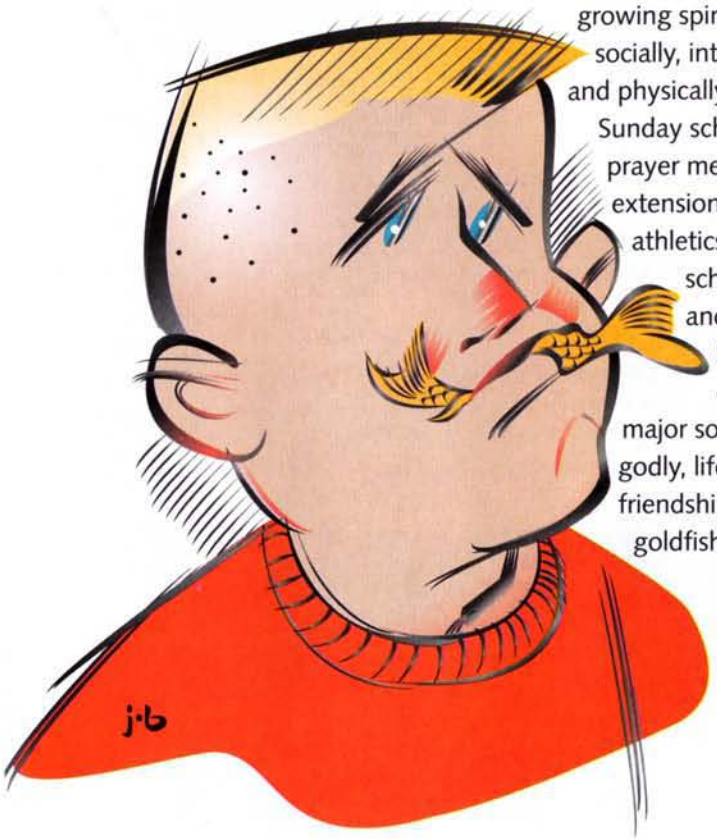
So you want to find out about BJU, but you aren't quite ready to hop on a plane and make a visit? Here's the ninth in a series of humorous overviews of "life in these parts."

Societies

Worried about hazing, keg parties, and people passed out on the fraternity lawns? Glad to say—you won't find them here. The Greek society system at BJU has been in existence since 1928, with four original societies. Now there are 47 societies—just a few additions over the years. Societies at BJU are Greek-lettered, student-run organizations, but that's where the similarity to fraternities or sororities stops. BJU's societies are designed to help develop good, godly relationships—growing spiritually, socially, intellectually, and physically through Sunday school and prayer meeting, extension ministries, athletics, debate, scholastic bowl, and outings. Societies are one of the major sources of godly, lifelong friendships (with no goldfish swallowing).



Night Mail

Some things never change. It worked for your grandparents and it's still working today. If you have a significant "friend" on the other side of campus, night mail is a fast and free method to send him/her a note, candy, a teddy bear, wildlife you've found crawling outside the dorm, etc. Your message is delivered by students each night right to his or her door. (How's that for service?) So if you're looking for a great way to communicate, join the thousands—er, maybe just hundreds—who are enjoying night mail every day (oops, I mean night).

Liberal Arts

Ever dream of being a Russian-speaking painter at an engineering firm? Or how about a piano-playing physicist in the U.S. Senate? No? Well, why not? At BJU, you don't study just your major; you get a well-rounded education. For example, in addition to the design courses you would take as a graphic design major, you would also get exposure to history, literature, speech, and Bible. The result? You, as a grad, are sought by employers across the country because you can speak intelligently about something other than paintbrushes.

FACT OR FICTION

Pink & Blue Sidewalks

A. a painter's idea of a joke

B. the floor tiles in a maternity ward

C. a humorous rumor about BJU

CORRECT ANSWER: C

All of Bob Jones University's sidewalks are standard issue cement, and guys and girls share them every day. In fact, you'd be hard-pressed to find a better place to meet Christian young people from around the world, and BJU has tons of opportunities for guys and girls to interact, learn, and serve the Lord together, both on and off campus. Call 1-800-BJ-AND-ME for more information or visit our website at www.bju.edu.
